5. POLICY PROCEDURES

a. Annual Notch increases

The salary of an employee shall be increased annually on his increment date to the applicable notch unless the performance of the employee is, in the opinion of Management, unsatisfactory.

In the event of the performance of an employee, in the opinion of his departmental head, being unsatisfactory the departmental head shall give the employee prior notice with full reasons of his intention to recommend to Management that the notch increase of the relevant employee be withheld. After Management has considered the report of the departmental head and the comments of the employee, if any, Management may withhold such notch increase for a maximum period of 12 months.

In the event of the performance of the employee not improving during the period referred to above, a charge may be laid against the employee in terms of the disciplinary procedure agreement.

Where Management, during or after the period referred to above, is of the opinion that the performance of the employee during such period was satisfactory, the salary of the employee shall be adjusted to the salary notch that would have been applicable to him had his salary increment not been withheld, from such date as Management may determine and the employee shall retain his previous increment date.

b. Extraordinary salary increases

Management may grant an employee a special increase within his scale or any other reward as management may decide, in the event of such employee, in the opinion of Management –

- Being exceptionally efficient;
